Ladies' Black Jerseys,

A Cincinnati paper thus speaks of a recent performance: Miles & Barton's Bijon Opera Bouffe Company presented "Orpheus and Eurydice" at the Grand last evening, the audience being a good sized one. The opera has been seen here before, but the performance of last evening was a decidedly better production of the piece, the cast being in nearly every part stronger. The opera is crowded with catchy music and the scenery is all very handsome, with the funny libretto, pretty girls, handsome costumes, clever music, etc.

"Orpheus and Eurydice" should draw large audiences at the Grand this week, and we do not hesitate to promise those who attend an enjoyable evening

MAUDE GRANGER IN "LYNWOOD." One of the rarest dramatic treats of the present season will be the appearance of the talented emotional actress, Miss Maude Granger, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings next, and Saturday matinee, at the Grand Opera House, in J. K. Tillotson's latest successful romantic military drama "Lynwood," which was first produced at the Union Square Theater, New York, and met with wonderful success. Mr. Tillotson. the anthor, also wrote 'The Planter's Wife,"
'Queens," and other successful plays; but
"Lynwood" is said to be his best work.
Speaking of a recent performance, the Detroit Free Press says: "Mr. J. K. Tillotson's drama entitled 'Lynwood' was given its first representation in Detroit at Whitney's Opera House last night. Like that author's 'Planter's Wife,' this is a story of the late American War, but being the product of maturer experience, it is far and away a stronger play in every respect. He has woven into this drama a story of exciting and often deeply thrilling interest; he has skillfully employed the resources of the stage in developing that story, and he has enlivened it with intense and rapid sction, always with an eye to cumulative interest, so that the spectator is more absorbed in the last moments of the play than in what passes at any preceding stage of its unfolding. The inevitable outcome of that kind of work is a superior acting drama. The author is to be congratulated on having produced in "Lynwood" the best play of its class and within its scope that has found its way to the stage in many years. come of its scense are quite as strong as the best achievements of Sardon."

ENGLISH'S OPERA HOUSE-A MIDNIGHT MAR This successful production, which has pleased New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Boston, will be presented for the first time here Thursday next, and stay the re-mainder of the week. We give below an ex-tract from the Philadelphia Press, which deals with the merit of the performance, and also gives a brief sketch of the play: The play is a romantic drama, the period of which is in the middle of the sixteenth century, the country, France. "Claude De Guise" attempts to force his neice, "Hortense," into an un willing marriage with "Phillippe de Brion." The play opens with the meeting of "Hortense" and "Casimir, Comte de Langlet," in "Casimir's chateau, of which "De Guise" has just taken possession. "Cassimir's" heart is at once inspired with love for "Hortense" and subsequently he prevents the intended sacrifice of "Hortense" to "De Brion" by appearing at night bofore the ruined monastery, where the ceremony is to take place, by wounding "De Brion" in a duel and by taking his place and becoming himself the husband of "Hortense." Then he goes to the war and tense." Then he goes to the war and "Hortense" to a convent, from which she is enticed into the chateau of "De Guise" by the devise of a rumor that there her husband Mr. A. Seidensticker denies that he is a lies wounded to death. Once within the chateau her uncle and "De Brien" seek to make her believe that the latter was the husband of the midnight marriage. "Cassimir" > posed treason. As the axe is about to fall upon "Cassimir's" neck the king arrives, summoned by "Cassimer's" faithful triends, and husband and wife return to Gascony to find their happiness. THE DIME MUSEUM. The Monarch Museum closed another big week last night, and will come forward again to-morrow afternoon with another strong bill-in fact, about the best of the season, which is a sufficient guarantee that the business will continue big. Manager Sackett announces the re-engagement, for another week, in Curiosity Hall of Barnum's famous bearded lady, Miss Annie Jones, and the beautiful Circassian lady, Miss Ida Jeffries. The new people are the four Nautch dancers, high caste Hindoo Princess, ensuite; Bohemian glass blowers, Punch and Judy, etc. In the theatrum will be seen the great only rival of the great Wani Atta on the high wire; Mayo and Sout erland, sketch artists; Georgia Kane, the seet of all serio-comics; J. H. Simmond aged negro impersonator; T. J. Heff ren, the famous one-legged song and dance man; and last week of the local favorite, Master Frankie Jones, in his clever imitations, songs and dances. This will tertainly be a dollar show for a dime, and we shall expect to see the Museum packed both day and night.

The Zoc management report full houses all of last week at the night performances and also at the usual matinees. The chief attraction was Louise Murio's Brunette Brigade, which held the boards throughout the week. A new programme begins every Monday nighi. Therefore, the patrons of this famous West End amusement resort may look for an entire change of bill to-morrow night. The best specialty compa-nies are engaged at the Zoo. Performances every night and mattnees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

English's Opera House will open Thursday night with "A Midnight Marriage." The Dime Museum is constantly growing in popular favor, and is daily patronized by some of the best people in the city. Messrs. D. H. Baldwin & Co. announce a Miss Maude Granger, who is shortly to appear here in "Lynwood," is not only a beau the envy of the ladies everywhere.

A grand piano recital is announced for to morrow and Tuesday nights at Pfattlin's Music Parlors. William H. Sherwood, the em inent American pianist, will preside. The Boston Advertiser says: "Mr. Sherwood's achievements last evening entitle atm to a place among the very best planists heard here. * * He was equally at home in Beethoven and Wagner, in Bach an Chopin, and in the distinctive characteristics required in the interpretation of all his composers, his interpretations might well be taken as

The Elks' annual benefit takes place at the Grand Opera House, Friday afternoon, February 6. A fine bill is being prepared, and much interest is already manifested in Cook Comedy Company in "The Bells." | World. after which will come Harrison and Gour-lay, volunteer specialty prople from the Museum and Zoo, and one act from Miss Frances Bishop's charming soubrette play, "Mugg's Landing." This will make a great programme, and should fill the house to overflowing. The proceeds are to go into the charity fund of the lodge, and as the tickets are only fif y cents each, the friends of the Order should patronize them largely.

Mrs. Hensley Murdered. The body of Mrs. Mary Hensley was brought in yesterday by officers for post mortem examination, the keeper of the vault where it lay offering no resistance this time to the removal. It was taken to Kregelo & Whitsett's, where Dr. Albert Stratford conducted the post mortem. The examination proved that Mrs. Hensley had died from the effects of an abortion, and that she been lacerated in a norrible manner by the application of instruments. Hensley is still in custody, but nothing can be learned of Dearbaugh. It was stated by some of the papers that Hensley had not been married, but this is a mistake. 'Squire Pease performed the cere mony at the residence of Hensley's brother, in the Smith Block, on the night of January 3. No evidence taken by the Coroner has so far been made public. The investigation will be continued, and a number of witnesses will be examined. Yesterday's Fires. There were two calls upon the Fire Department yesterday morning. The first alarm was sent in from Box 313, caused by an incendiary fire in the woodshed belong ing to P. Guyman, 468 North West street.

Loss, $25. The second firs occurred about noon, in the boarding-house of Mrs. McVickers, 182 North Delaware street. A servant built a fire in the grate and the lambrequin on the mantle was ignited. This communicated with the widow curtains, destroying the wooden shutters of the window and wreck ing a Steinway piano. Mr. Pfafflin's loss will not fall short of $1,200.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a burning flue in the residence of Andrew Frall, on Elisworth street, caused another run, but no loss resulted.

Contemplated Fair for St. Vincent's Infirmary.

Three years have passed since the Sisters of Charity have made an appeal to the public for aid, yet their institution receives all sick and suffering applicants without regard to nationality or creed or ability to pay for treatment. Many persons, even in the city of Indianapolis, are not aware of this fact. Since their arrival in the city 1,613 patients have been treated. Of this number 193 were private patients, charged at the rate of $10 per week for board and nursing, etc.; 312 were ward patients, board, nursing and medicine varying from $2 to $5 per week, as means permitted, and 508 were charity pa-tients, entirely destitute, many of whom have not wherewith to cover them. In view of these facts no person ought to besitate an instant to aid in the fair as liberally as their means will allow. Money is needed to pay off ficating indebtedness, and an effort should be made to aid the Sisters in their work of mercy and charity. The only wonder is that such an institution, without an endowment fund of any kind, has been and is conducted with so little call upon the public. Every one is expected to assist at their fair, which will commence on the 11th of May, 1885, and continue until the 16th, as
